Counselor Course Nets OU $20,000 Federal Contract

A $20,000 contract between Omaha University and the federal government for a course training high school teachers to become counselors has been announced by Dr. Gale B. Oleson, director of academic testing and counseling.

Omaha U is the only school in Nebraska at which the National Defense Counseling and Guidance Training Institute, as the course is called, will be held.

75 Applications

The program, sponsored by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, will cost over three million dollars on a nation-wide basis and will have similar institutes in all 50 states.

"Twenty-five Nebraska high school teachers will be chosen for the Institute," said Oleson, "although we've had over 75 applications already."

Public school personnel attending the courses will attend free and will receive stipends of $75 a week plus $15 a week for each dependent.

Private school enrollees will attend without charge, but will receive no stipend. Classes run from June 13 to July 16.

Eight-Hour Day

The objective of the Institute is to provide a program of study and training in identification, counseling and guidance of high school students.

The instructional program will include lectures on all phases of counseling, laboratory experience, in testing and scoring and small discussion groups.

Classes will be eight hours a day, six days a week. Six hours of graduate credits will be allowed upon completion of the course, Oleson said.

Instructors will include Oleson, Dr. Jay B. MacGregor, dean of students, Donald Pflasterer, associate dean of students, and Robert Stransky, a graduate intern in guidance testing.

Special Election to Fill Student Council Post

A special election to fill a student council vacancy will take place on Feb. 24.

All interested sophomore male students may check out petitions from the Dean of Students Office, Room Adm. 240, and must return them by 3:30 p. m. Monday.

The new member will replace Ron Fogel, who did not return to the University for the second semester.

OU Staff Members Observe Giant Projection TV Screen

There's a possibility that television may be brought into the University of Omaha's classrooms in the near future.

Paul Borge, head of the Radio-TV Department, and George Ragan, OU electronics engineer, borrowed a 10x12 foot theater projection screen from the Ranch Bowl for a demonstration Jan. 29.

Several members of OU's faculty and administration, including President Milo Ball, watched a practice TV-classroom on the $5,000 unit.

The purpose of the demonstration was to give a comparison of the difference between a single "big screen" and numerous 21- or 24-inch monitors placed throughout a classroom.

Borge said the use of TV for demonstration purposes in large classrooms has tremendous possibilities. Closeups of detail in science demonstrations could be blown into a large picture which

Official Notices

All students interested in editing the 1961 Tomahawk yearbook should make application to Paul V. Peterson, director of student publications, Room AA 130, by Friday, Feb. 19.

Applications should contain qualifications and reasons for applying.

The University Theater will present two more performances of "The Happiest Millionaire" by Kyle Chrichton tonight and Saturday evening. The first performance was held Thursday evening.

Day Registration Down About 200 For 2nd Semester

In the usual fashion, University of Omaha registration dropped for the spring semester.

Enrollment figures from the Registrar's Office show 2,500 persons signed up for the day classes. That's a decrease of about 200 from the fall 1959 term.

A year ago 2,486 students registered for the 1959 spring semester, an indication the long-run enrollment has remained relatively stable.

Enrollment figures from the College of Adult Education show about the same balance.

Credit course enrollment in the night division rose from 2,070 last spring to 2,165 for the current term.

However, the number of persons taking non-credit courses dropped slightly. Some one thousand persons are expected to attend CAE non-credit classes this semester. While a year ago, there were some 1,200 night students in that category.

The Registrar's Office reports the over-all CAE registration dropped nearly a thousand persons in comparing the current term with the 1959 fall semester.

There are nearly one thousand more men students than women attending day school and men outnumber the women by some 500 in the night division.

New Liaison Named

Dr. Donald Z. Woods, president's administrative assistant, will serve as faculty liaison for the AF-ROTC. He replaces John Woods, who retired last semester.

could be seen by every person in the classroom, he said.

Ragan said the cost of the two systems would be about the same. He termed the using of nine or 10 home-size monitors, as opposed to a large single screen, "completely impractical."

Ragan said most of the persons viewing the demonstration were favorably impressed, but there was some concern about the loss of detail in using a large screen.

But he said more detail could be obtained on the large-screen unit if the University had a permanent unit of its own. (He was reluctant to make technical changes in borrowed equipment.)

Dr. A. Stanley Trickett, head of the history department, said he was impressed with the demonstration.

Dr. Trickett said if a large-screen unit would be available, he would like to use it in the Missouri Valley Conference of Collegiate Teachers of History next March.

Activities Bldg. Due Feb. 24 As Finishing Touches Begin

Opening date of the new Student Activities Building has been set for Wednesday, Feb. 24.

Monday, contractors will begin cleaning, clearing and waxing.

Plumbers and electricians are finished installing equipment in the food services area, said President Milo Ball.

The building will have to be finished by Feb. 24 if the Junior Prom, which is planned for Friday, Feb. 26, will take place in the ballroom.

However, food service will not be ready until March 1. At that time, the cafeteria in the Administration Building will close.

The Student ("Shack") Club will remain open until the snack bar is completed in the new building, about two weeks later.

The bookstore begins to move piecemeal into its new facilities during next week. However, sales in the old bookstore will continue until Feb. 29.

President Ball plans a ribbon cutting ceremony for Wednesday, Feb. 24.

He plans an open house for a Sunday, late in March.

Bootstrappers Society Starts Upperclass Scholars' Fund

The Bootstrap Scholarship Fund was officially started last week.

This fund will provide a full tuition scholarship, to be awarded annually to a deserving junior, senior, or graduate student in Arts and Sciences.

The fund will be self-perpetuating. The student receiving the scholarship will be selected by the Alumni Board. The award will be based on scholastic achievement.

The Bootstrap Scholarship Fund is sponsored by the Pen and Sword, the Bootstrappers' campus social organization. It is the brainchild of Captain John W. Reiser, Army Artillery, a recent Graduate of the University.

Alumni Administrators

It was started as a goodwill gesture to express the appreciation Bootstrappers feel for the opportunity of attending the University of Omaha. Major Robill Roberts, U. S. Air Force, is currently the Fund Coordinator.

The fund is administered by the Alumni Association. The call has been put out to all Bootstrap graduates to support it.

Vital Education

An arrangement has also been worked out with the bookstore. Bootstrappers may leave their books there on consignment, and when sold, the proceeds will be turned over to the fund.

The President of the Pen and Sword, Major Frank E. Atchison, said that "Basically the military is dedicated to peace, and we are well aware that the most important commodity we possess is the youth of our country. Their education is vital. Our scholarship fund is perhaps a small contribution to the future of our country."

Editor Names Gateway Staff For Second Semester, 1960

The Board of Student Publications has reappointed Lowell Bauer as editor-in-chief of the Gateway for salary for the second semester, 1960, it was announced today.

It was the first such action in publication's history at the University.

Deans approved a petition to reimburse the Gateway editor at a meeting Feb. 4.

Bauer, a 20-year-old English-journalism major, announced his staff for the rest of the semester.

Supervising the newsroom will be Karen Jensen, managing editor and Sue Worman, news editor. Randall Parker will be editorial cartoonist.

Department editors will be Ken Zimmerman, sports editor; Barbara Butler, feature editor; Linda Strnad, society editor. George Ragan will be staff photographer.

Reporters will be Paul Beavers, Don Burggrabe, Carol Sue Child, Pat Divis, Jo Ann Eastberg, Bill Greene, Gail Grove, Russ Grove, Bill Jardine.

Emery Addresses Women's Council

Dean Donald Emery addressed the Women's Inter-Club Council of Omaha at a Tuesday luncheon in the Rome hotel.

As guest speaker Emery stressed the need of adult education for women and presented information concerning the variety of subjects offered by the College of Adult Education.

Emery emphasized that typical adult women desire interests to occupy their time "after the children have matured," and that a progressive society requires educational advancement.

The Women's Inter-Club Council, composed of presidents representing Omaha women's clubs, receives representative publications from the CAE and disseminates information concerning adult education to their representative groups.

Other reporters will include Chuck Palmer, Ann Pence, Karen Pope, John Ritner, Carol Robinson, Robert Scoggan, Ruben Shay, Richard Sheehan, Gary Swanson, Jay Whinnery and Leigh Wilson.

Twelve more Gateways are scheduled: seven eight-pagers; four four-pagers, and one special edition in March.

Sue Worman Named ANIE Scholar Winner

Sue Worman, a sophomore at the University, received the fifth annual Associated Nebraska Industrial Editors' Award Thursday.

Two $100 awards are presented annually to one student from OU and one from Creighton, interested in industrial editing. Selecting of the recipients is made by the respective journalism departments and is based on scholarship achievement and outstanding activities in journalism.

The 20-year-old journalism major is interested in going into public relations or industrial editing. She worked last summer on the Farm Credit house organ and is now news editor of the Gateway.

Library Penalty Rises to $3 As Second Semester Begins

Four new library penalties for unreturned books are now in effect for second semester.

Increased circulation and rising costs prompted the revisions, which were made last semester.

The penalties are as follows:

1. The maximum fine for either regular or reserve books will be increased to $3. The old maximum of $1 had been in effect since 1938.

2. Fines will be doubled if not paid at the time the book is returned. This action is to discourage the need for letter-writing and tracking down.

3. In addition, for each book lost, the fine will consist of a $1 processing fee plus replacement value of the book. The processing fee is due to tracing a book and sending for it.

4. For overdue books that are lost the fine will consist of the book fine, the replacement cost and the processing fee.

Continuing fines include:

—Regular books: five cents per day.

—Reserve books (one, three, seven days): 25 cents for first day plus ten cents each following day.

—Reserve books (hour reserve): 25 cents for first hour plus ten cents each following hour.

Any book, except a reserve book, may be renewed once through a telephone call to the Gene Eppley Library.

Deaf Counseling Workshop Views Rehabilitation Method

Omaha University, in cooperation with the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, held a workshop on Rehabilitation Counseling for Deaf Persons, Feb. 8-10.

The workshop was financed by a $2,250 grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and planned jointly by the College of Adult Education and the Kansas City office of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Seven States Represented

About 15 persons, most of them counselors for the deaf in state offices of civilian vocational rehabilitation, attended the institute. They represented seven mid-western states.

Dr. Otto W. Snarr, assistant dean of the CAE, greeted the counselors from Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Kansas, North and South Dakota. The counselors spoke on the goals and prospects in facilities for the deaf.

Specialists Speak

Lectures in the conference center were followed by discussions and practical laboratories.

Thomas J. LePine, a specialist of the OVR's office of the deaf and hard of hearing, Washington, D. C., and consultant Boyce R. Williams, also from Washington, were two of the institute's speakers.

Other speakers included Fred Murphy, president of the Missouri Association of the Deaf; Melda Alber, principal, Iowa School for the Deaf; Richard W. Flint, Deaf Training Center teacher, Augustana College, Sioux Falls, S. D., and Dewey Coates, vocational principal, Missouri School for the Deaf.

Graduate Club Plans Dinner, February 17

Rothrock Speaker At Town and Gown

"European Ramblings" was the subject of a talk by Dr. George A. Rothrock given to the Town and Gown Club, Feb. 4.

Rothrock, history instructor, used slides in conjunction with his talk illustrating his extensive tour of Europe and a year of study at the University of Grenoble in France.

"Contrary to popular opinion," Rothrock said, "Europe has not been spoiled by tourists. But also one cannot expect the culture of old Europe to pop up along the rail routes as one passes by."

The Town and Gown Club, a mixed representation of faculty members and Omaha citizens, met in the faculty club room.

Tryouts Set

Tryouts for "Bells Are Ringing" will be held Monday through Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the auditorium.

Necessary Interruption

A University of Omaha psychology instructor was surprised yesterday—his class left in the middle of the lecture.

The instructor had forgotten that day school classes meet for three one-hour sessions during the week rather than for one three-hour session as in night school.

The instructor's scheduled lecture would have been two hours too long.

Oh, Excuse Me!

Roderic Crane recently asked if there were any people in his economics 212 class who hadn't had the introductory 211 course. A girl in the first row raised her hand. She said her counselor told her it would be all right to take the course. "Yes, but that is not what I said," replied the instructor. "Yes you did," answered the student. "HE ASKED YOU."

Theory and Practice

Two big husky sophomores were walking down the Applied Arts building hall and trading views on their new classes. One was explaining, (justifying), why he had taken a course in Marriage and the Family. He finished his explanation by saying, "Man you should be in one of those crazy labs."

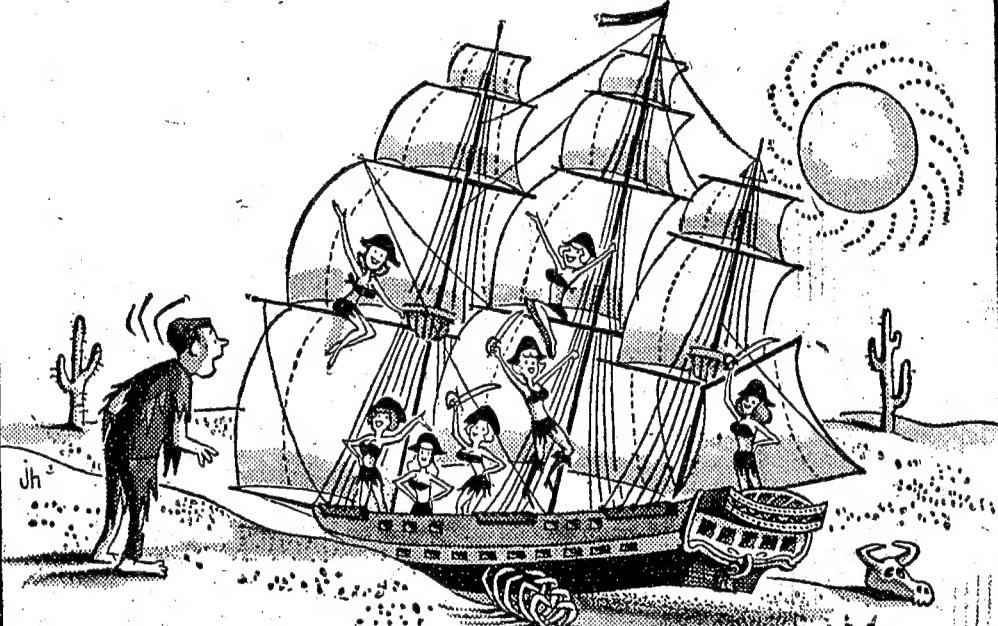

What's the Difference?

A co-ed was having extreme difficulty getting her foreign car to go on the ice. A dry-eyed sophomore stood watching as the co-ed alighted from her car and surveyed the situation. "My wheels just spin," she whimpered.

But the lady in distress was in luck as a friend pulled up with a bag of sand. The sophomore gasped as the two girls poured all of the sand . . . under the front wheels.

Laurie Frank Elected Member Of Carnival Queen's Court

Laurie Frank, an OU co-ed, was attended the carnival stayed in "snatched" during a visit to Dartmouth University's 50th anniversary Winter Carnival. As a result she was selected as one of four members of the carnival queen's court.

Fifteen Dartmouth men roamed about the campus prior to the Feb. 5th carnival weekend and chose the 45 prettiest girls they could find. Miss Frank was one spotted. The girls were then judged down to the queen and her four attendants.

Miss Frank, 21, was visiting her pin-mate, Ray Thompson, formerly of Omaha. She spent 12 days at the university and attended classes, parties and winter sporting events with him.

Many of the 2,000 girls who attended the carnival stayed in the fraternity houses evacuated earlier by the men. "There were bunks placed wall to wall," she said. "Houses usually holding 20 men had more than 55 women in them."

Miss Frank, a senior education major, plans to teach in Hanover, New Hampshire.

The Backlash— Cage Failure No Surprise

"Luckless Omahans Lose Again," mourned the headline in last Sunday's paper.

They were talking about the local hockey group but the tag could well have been set above the account of Saturday night's OU basketball encounter.

It was further down the page where readers learned that "Iowa Tutors Trim Indians" (set in a smaller, one column deck).

The OU story went on to say that it was the thirteenth straight setback for the Indians.

It's hardly a laudable season that is falling into place in the record books. And it's probably a mite discouraging to one Sonny Means.

But the latest cage coach is certainly not in the ignominious position of some "luckless Omahans" who in days past ballyhooed a season of "steady triumph" and "glory for the city."

There Were Warnings

Omaha washed out completely on a baseball team that year in and year out filled the spring editions with promises of "a record to be proud of" before they fizzled their way through a long summer.

And the token crowds that visit the local ice house will be the first to chuckle at Ak-Sar-Ben's pre-season forecast of a return to those thrilling days of yesteryear when normal gates of five thousand cheered the winning teams at the coliseum.

No—the youthful Mr. Means had nothing but dire warnings when he stepped into Jack Cotton's empty shoes.

His autumn comments were along the apologetic lines that are honest, if not appropriate, when a seller can't produce the top product.

"It's going to be a building year," he clichéd to the press.

With a young unexperienced team "we're going to need a lot of seasoning," he said.

Even Luck Was Gone

His initial remarks should have left no necessity to read between the lines to discover that Ouampli wasn't going to wear out any victory tugs this year.

Let's face it—you can't win 'em all. Credit is due the coach who will recognize the situation and make the most of it.

It's unfortunate that luck wouldn't fall our way in some of those games where it was the deciding factor—but that's the way it goes.

"Wait'll Next Year"

There were plenty of those "could - have - gone - either-way" games to offset the few whollings the team suffered.

Improvement of individual play has been encouraging.

And for the future, the school's entry into conference competition should place a little higher premium on "making the OU five." The high schoolers should give it more thought.

Though I can't say as I've heard it myself, I'm sure Sonny is one to make with the time-honored cry of the losing coach: "Wait'll next year!"

(And if he wants harmony, Al Caniglia would probably join in.)

Build as build you must, Mr. Means, and let no one deride the edifice before the basement is even completed.

Conference Monday For Spring Athletes

Spring sports coaches have put out the call for all interested participants.

Students with a yen for baseball, golf or tennis have been asked to attend a meeting in the Fieldhouse Monday, Feb. 15, at 3:30 p.m.

All candidates for team positions are expected to attend.

Those who will be unable to make it are asked to contact the individual coaches—Virgil Yelkin for baseball, Sonny Means for tennis and Bob Anthes for golf.

OU Rests in CIC Basement

By Paul Beavers

It appears the OU basketball club will maintain the bottom peg in the Central Intercollegiate Conference standings.

The CIC form released last Tuesday shows OU securely tied to the bottom of the list. Sonny Means' crew has compiled an 0-6 win-loss record in conference tangles. Indeed, it's been a rough season for the Indians' new boss.

The Indians will engage a couple of conference teams tonight and Saturday—third place St. Benedict's (3-3) and league-leading Pittsburgh (6-0).

To climb the ladder by beating both of these teams is not probable.

Means' club does have three victories to its credit, but they were in non-conference play. Transfer those wins to the conference record and OU would be in a three-way tie for third.

That looks a little better.

But the Indians can bring up their prestige by just one more victory—the big one. That being, of course, against Creighton.

OU will meet the Jays at the Civic Auditorium next Tuesday. The Indians' chances of victory are slim, but not impossible.

Trackster Hopes Rise for Meet

By Gary Swanson

The second of four indoor track meets will be held tomorrow at 2 p.m. in the Omaha University Fieldhouse.

OU will be vying with Simpson College and William Jewell in the triangular meet. Head Track Coach Ernie Gorr said both of the opponents will be under a slight handicap since neither have indoor track facilities.

Taking a look at the schools individually shows that William Jewell holds a conference championship in the high hurdles, has a couple of good vaulters and a pretty fair shot man.

Simpson, on the other hand, holds a conference title in the high jump and the high hurdles. Coach Gorr said that they have a pair of fair sprinters but most of the team is made up of freshmen.

OU's distance running took a drop when Dennis Taylor left school at mid-semester but Roxie Robinson or Dick Burros should be able to plug the gap.

DISPUTE COSTS TIE

Freshman J. B. Simmons and Creighton transfers Leo McCarthy and Denny Dunning were the top tracksters in last week's meet.

OU ran third in the home quadrangular meet with Emporia, South Dakota and Kansas City.

A disputed fourth place in the 60 yard low hurdles cost the Indians a chance at a tie for second with South Dakota. Simmons was thought by many to have placed fourth in the event but the point was given to a South Dakota sprinter, dropping OU to third.

Emporia finished on top with 65½ points.

Kansas City trailed the group with 10½.

Coach Gorr said: "McCarthy ranks as one of the fastest 60 yard dashers that the OU Fieldhouse has seen for a long time." "Simmons' hurdle performance shows promise of carrying on the tradition of outstanding hurdlers at Omaha University," he added.

Snow Fails to Halt Intramural Hoopsters

Last Tuesday night's heavy snow and high winds cancelled the varsity basketball game, but the intramural roundballers played on.

This week the tenth round of play was completed in the double round robin tournament.

Last Monday, Tau Kappa Epsilon engineered an upset by defeating the Dirty Dozen, 35 to 27, while the Physical Education Majors ran true to form and swamped the Uni Vets, 56 to 35.

the season at the Field House, Jan. 12.

The Jays were in the prime.

But lately the tall boys from CU have fallen off their early season sensationalism.

And it could be that Means will have his lads "up" for the big one.

Prepsters Here for Title Berth Efforts

The University of Omaha Athletic Department plays host to a high school district wrestling tournament tonight and Saturday.

Head Wrestling Coach Russ Gorman will be the tournament director.

Nearly a hundred grapplers from nine high schools will be vying for a berth in the state tournament at Lincoln Feb. 19 and 20. The top three lads in each weight division will be tagged for the Lincoln trip.

This is the first year the high school wrestlers have had to go through a district battle to compete in the state finals. Right now Cornhusker land is divided into three districts, but, as the popularity continues to grow, more divisions are anticipated.

The nine schools entered in the tournament here are Central, South, North, Tech, Westside, Bellevue, Boys Town, Neligh and the Nebraska School for the Blind.
